Section 1. That it is declared necessary and expedient to borrow Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000) and to authorize the issuance of Water Bonds of the Town of Appomattox, Appomattox County, Virginia, in said principal amount, pursuant to Chapter 122 of the Code of Virginia and Section 127 Appendix of The Constitution of Virginia for the sole purpose of obtaining sufficient funds to acquire the privately owned waterworks system in the said town and to construct an extension to said system in and for a part of the Town of Appomattox, Virginia, and to hold an election thereon, in the manner prescribed by law.

Said bonds shall be sold at not less than par and accrued interest at the lowest rate of interest obtainable by duly advertising said bonds to bond houses, banks, lending agencies and individuals, but not exceeding six (6%) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of June and the first day of December in each year that said bonds are outstanding. Both principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable at the Peoples National Bank in Lynchburg, Virginia, in any coin or currency of the United States of America, which is at the time of payment legal tender for the payment of public or private debts. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the Treasurer of said Town and the town seal to be affixed, and the coupons attached thereto to bear facsimile signatures of the Mayor and Treasurer.

Brigade of Firemen Get Lefty Heifer From Well

CHILLWORTH, ENGLAND. — Bertie, a hefty heifer, fell into a cistern. It took a brigade of firemen to get her out.

Norman Ashworth was leading Bertie his farmyard to a pond. Myrtle was bound for Ashworth to become beef.

Bertie crossed the cistern floor. She stepped on it. Her feet slipped through. The rest of her followed gradually.

It was Myrtle wearing Bertie like a girdle.

Mrs. Ashworth was standing upright in several feet of water. Only her head was above the surface.

Ashworth called the Surrey brigade. The firemen put a sling around Myrtle and pulled. The firemen pumped out the water. They dug a shaft alongside the cistern and tore down one wall. They put two sets of ropes on Myrtle and eased her through the wreckwight or so at a time.

Mrs. Ashworth looked fondly upon her unperturbed Myrtle. "This has so endeared her to me," Ashworth told reporters, "that we probably won't part with her as all."

'Woman' Fire Eater Unmasked, Revealed As Fugitive G.I.

BURTONWOOD AIR BASE, ENGLAND.—Donna, the "woman" fire eater whose act has been wowing British vaudeville audiences for the last three years, has been unmasked as an American GI deserter from Philadelphia.

United States army authorities said "Donna Delbert" of the English stage confessed "she" actually is Pfc. Delbert E. Hill of Philadelphia.

The rouged, beskirted Hill was arrested in a theatrical boarding house in Newcastle, England, and turned over to army authorities on charges of wartime desertion.

Hill told military police he went AWOL from his air force ground job in the summer of 1945, fearing he soon would be transferred to the Pacific theater for further war service.

It was a tip from a jealous girl friend that led to Hill's arrest. He was wearing a woman's blouse, slacks, nylons and shoes when taken into custody.

Police seized his female padding. They left behind three ducks which were part of his stage act.

At the Burtonwood base an army barber trimmed his shoulder length curly brunet locks to army specifications and shaved a day's growth of dark stubble.

The army also provided him with a green fatigue uniform and army brogans before locking him in a guardhouse cell. But he still sported plucked eyebrows and dainty, painted fingernails.

Average Man Works Half as Much Now To Clothe Family

NEW YORK.—The average man works only half as hard today to clothe his family as he did in 1914.

The national industrial conference board, an independent fact-finding organization, in a survey found the working man in 1949 spent the equivalent of less than five hours' work a week to buy clothes for his family whereas he had to work more than nine hours a week in 1914 to get the money.

"The purchasing value of the wage earners' clothing dollar has more than doubled over the 34-year period," said the board. "The three-fold rise in clothing prices has been overshadowed by the sixfold increase in wages over the hourly rate of 25 cents in 1914.

"The wage earner could in 1948 outfit himself with an overcoat, gloves, hat, suit, shirt, socks, and shoes and pay the bill by working 61 hours.

"The 1914 wage earner would have had to work 153 hours for the same outfit."

On the same scale, a woman's hat cost one and a half hours work in 1948 and four hours in 1914.

Two factors in the cost difference were pointed out. The average family size in 1914 was 4.33 persons compared with 3.61 persons last year. But the board found the modern family buys a greater variety and larger amounts of clothing, with the increase in personal consumption amounting to almost 50 per cent in the 34 years.

Furthermore the expenditures for heavy clothing has declined in the period because of advances in home heating and travel in automobiles.

In the past 34 years, woman have taken over a larger and larger share of the clothing dollar, the board found. In 1914 the man spent 50 per cent more for his clothing than he permitted his wife to spend. But today, the woman spends 30 per cent more for her outfits than her husband does for his.

Pig Brooders Used To Protect Litter

Are Found Valuable At Farrowing Time

"This little pig went to market" . . . is a great first line for a nursery rhyme. But it doesn't go far enough as far as farmers are concerned. They'd rather wait until the pig grows up before sending it to market. And the growing-up process is no snap, especially during the first few weeks when the old sow may crush her precious off-spring as they crowd around her in an effort to keep warm.

The problem of getting hogs to market starts at farrowing time. In the spring some form of supplementary heat is needed to prevent a high mortality rate. Pig brooders have been developed for this purpose. Their use will save an average of one and a half pigs per litter, according to Purdue university.

Brooders are easy to build and economical to operate. Generally, they are constructed by boarding off a corner of the farrowing pen to a height of about 16 inches. A roof is placed over this rectangular enclosure and a board nailed across the front opening about 8 inches above the floor. Heat is provided by a 150 to 200-watt lamp, the size depending on weather conditions. A hole is cut in the top, and the lamp placed in a suitable reflector which is bolted securely over the opening. Pig brooders consume an average of 36 Kilowatt hours of power per litter.

Meat Income High

Almost one-third of the American farmer's total cash income last year came from the sale of meat animals, according to the chart above prepared by the American Meat Institute from U.S. department of agriculture figures.

The value of meat animals was more than nine and one-half billion dollars. Total cash receipts from all crops, including government payments, approached 31 and one-third billion dollars.

From their cash income, farmers and ranchers paid out large amounts for stock, feed, labor and other operating costs.

Milk By-Products Hold Infant Food Source

An infant food made from edible by-products of milk may soon open a new market for dairymen in tests now going on in Mexico continue to show favorable results. This is the conclusion drawn by Dr. Harold Macy of the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Macy and Irvine McQuarrie, pediatrics head at the university, have visited Mexico where they conferred with leading pediatricians on the tests.

The new baby food will offer opportunities for use in many countries if future experiments prove satisfactory.

Calf Which 'Sits Down' Interests Veterinarians

Cattle don't sit down ordinarily, so it was news when the American Veterinary association expressed professional interest in the strange case of a Hereford calf on a farm in Tennessee. The AMV journal said the Tennessee calf often sits on the ground with her hind legs sprawled forward.

The calf usually lies down again before trying to rise to all four feet, the journal reported.

Support Price On Wheat

Government support prices for the 1949 crop of wheat will be at 90 per cent of parity, as required by law, R. B. Bridgeforth, chairman of the State Production and Marketing Administration Committee, said today.

In general, the 1949 wheat support program will be similar to those of the past 2 years, he said, except that the supports will be available a month longer. Growers may sign up from time of harvest through January 31, 1950. Methods of support will be through farm and warehouse storage loans and by purchase agreements.

To be eligible, the wheat must be produced in the continental U. S. in 1949, and grade U. S. No. 3 or better, or U. S. No. 4 or 5 on test weight only.

Mr. Bridgeforth pointed out that the price-support program looks to the interests of consumers as well as of producers, since it is designed to provide adequate supplies of wheat and to establish a farm floor price.

Travel Council Gets Results

Richmond, Va., May 19.- Virginia's resort and travel facilities were given high commendation this week in a report by the Federal Recreation Committee on recent tours to Virginia. The Old Dominion's hotels, motor courts, shrines and natural wonders were strongly recommended to the 220,000 federal employees in Washington for their summer tours and vacations.

More than sixty members of the committee, each representing a different department of the government, recently visited Virginia as guests of the State Department of Conservation and Development and of the Virginia Travel Council.

"A wide variety of accomodations were inspected, ranging from expensive and pretentious hotels to the small boarding house type of lodging suitable for persons with moderate incomes,"says R. I. Tompkins, chairman of the sub-committee preparing the report.
